All Brigadiers Get Unanimous Vote With Exception of Gen. Edwards.

Twelve brigadier generals and fourteen colonels received the approval of the Senate Military Affairs Committee yesterday for promotion. The list including Gen. Clarence B. Edwards, first commander overseas of the Twenty-sixth Division, New England National Guard, whose war record was attacked by the ex-official members of the committee. The vote was 12 to 3 for his promotion and unanimous in all other instances.

The brigadier generals will become major generals and the colonels brigadier generals, as follows:

Major generals: Clarence B. Edwards, James W. McAndrew, John Leonard Hines, Henry T. Allen, David Cary Shanks, Adelbert Cronkite, William Mason Wright, George W. Read, Charles Henry Muir, Charles Mencher, William G. Haan and George Bell, Jr.

Senator New, of Indiana, Republican, complained because the name of Omar Bundy, commander of the Second Division, A. E. F., and in whose name the war was declared, was not in the list, although carried in the list appointed by President Wilson for major general at the last session.

A demand for the records of the War Department in the case of Gen. Edwards, whose withdrawal from command was cited by the Democrats, was answered by Secretary of War Weeks, who told the committee the records of the War Department showed nothing unfavorable to the general.

SULLIVAN HAILS PRESIDENT AS REAL LEADER OF NATION WITH OBLIGATIONS TO NONE

Harding Already Has Shown Firm Appreciation of Executive Responsibility.

By MARK SULLIVAN.

With the Colombian treaty out of the way, the ground is now cleared for the great new measures of the present session, and as the administration takes up the business of making its constructive record it is interesting to make a survey of the field, as it lies before us.

The wish of President Harding, which he expressed in asking the Senate to take up the Colombian treaty as the first act of his administration, was based on two motives, both of which were in the nature of a clearing of the ground. He wanted the Colombian treaty out of the way, in the first place, as a prelude, as a sign of amity and good will, to which should be added the opening move in his policy toward all Latin America. His idea was that before asking Mexico to meet the obligations toward our citizens and our nation arising out of revolution, we should first prove to Mexico and to all Latin America our own disposition to live up to every possible demand of justice toward them.

Close Old Controversy. President Harding's second motive was one of housecleaning, so to speak. This particular treaty has been hanging fire for eight years and the controversy with Colombia, which it is supposed to close, is eighteen years old. The clearing of the ground in the nature of the field is the good will with which President Harding starts in to make the record of his administration. You can go up and down Washington in the streets and see the most part of this is just the natural impression made by the increase of acquaintance with his personality.

Even the most suspicious critics have been moved to make generous concessions based on President Harding's bearing in public; on his patience in the tremendous strain of an opening administration; on the firmness which has been difficult for a man of his kindly temperament, but which he nevertheless achieves under the spur of determination to do the right thing; on the pains that every one observes he has taken to get good men for his appointments. This is an effort which in the nature of things cannot always be successful, and which, therefore, is more apparent to those who watch the White House closely than it can be to the public at large. His critics have been impressed with the simple qualities of truthfulness and directness which shine vividly out of his transparent personality.

Harding is a Leader. From this ascendancy of President Harding in the judgment of Washington flows the first important fact and surprise of the field. That fact is that President Harding is the leader. No other individual and no group seriously contends with him for this prestige. At the time of President Harding's nomination, the theory was widely held that in the Republican management of affairs President Harding would fill, so to speak, the role of general manager, and that the board of directors in the same picture would be the Republican leaders in the Senate.

This theory, it may be added, was shared by several of those same Republican Senate leaders themselves. In the campaign this theory became one of the two or three major issues in the campaign. The slogan that Harding was going to be "the creature of a Senatorial oligarchy." This theory is now utterly disproved. As it has turned out, President Harding has made just two addresses to the Senate, and in both he has, if you choose to express it colloquially, "put the Senate in its place." It is doubtful if there is any parallel in our history for this twice-repeated declaration of the presence of the Senate and in the presence of the Senate that there must be on its part no expectation of any surrender of Executive prerogative.

Firm Hand With Senate. On the first occasion in December he said: "Something has been said about the 'senatorial oligarchy.' Of course, every one knows that it is to be a bit of highly imaginative and harmless fiction. When my responsibilities begin in the Executive Senate, I shall be as mindful of the Senate's prerogatives as I have been jealous for them as a member; but I mean at the same time to be as insistent about the responsibilities of the Executive. Our governmental good fortune does not lie in any surrender at either end of the avenue, but does lie in the coordination and co-operation which becomes the two in a great truly representative government."

The second occasion was in the address at the opening of the present session in which he told the Senate with the greatest possible gentleness of language, but with complete firmness of spirit, that in our country they must remain completely within the limits of their constitutional function and must not attempt anything in the nature of an initiation of foreign policy which is the prerogative of the Executive. This admonition the Senate has bowed to completely.

The foreign affairs which President Harding referred to will be one of four fields in which, roughly, the important business of the present session will divide itself. In this field of foreign affairs President Harding and his Secretary of State are now functioning with a free hand unimpeded by any such jealous insistence on the part of the Senate as created the deadlock of the past two sessions.

LITTLE PATRIOTS BRAVE STORM ON MT. VERNON VISIT

Children of Am. Revolution Make Pilgrimage To Nation's Shrine.

"It was a wonderful party, in spite of the rain," all the kiddies said, upon their return last night from the annual day of the National Society Children of the American Revolution, which brought scores of delegates and their national officers to Mount Vernon.

The rain came down in torrents the minute the children, accompanied by Mrs. David Lothrop, of Boston, founder, and Mrs. Frank W. Mondell, of Washington, president of the C. A. R., left the boat at Mount Vernon yesterday morning. For the first time in twenty-five years the patriotic exercises usually held around the national tree were conducted instead on the broad veranda of the mansion under direction of Mrs. Lothrop and Mrs. E. S. W. Howard, of Washington, vice president of the C. A. R.

Wreaths on Tomb. Wreaths of Easter lilies and roses were placed upon the tomb of George and Martha Washington by Russell Du Puy and Jessamine Dargatz, of Arkansas, while Stella Waterman, of the Governor Thomas Welles Society, of Washington, D. C., recited the poem "Our Flag of Liberty," written by Mrs. Lothrop for the C. A. R.

The children were met upon their arrival by Col. Harrison H. Dodge, superintendent of Mount Vernon, who escorted them from the boat to the mansion. Following the patriotic exercises, the children were conducted about the mansion and grounds, according to the original plan of Mrs. Lothrop to make the father of his country a real personality to the children by the annual pilgrimage.

A Real Personality. "When founding the society in 1897," Mrs. Lothrop said yesterday, "I made up my mind I would make Washington a figure to stand revealed before the children as a living, vital personality, and not simply a cold, detached historical figure. I wanted to lift him from the page of history to become a living being, vital and warm with human interest. I would have the children love his home and long to come to it as young things love to go to grandfather's home. And so the children of the American Revolution do love Washington with real warm human affection."

Delegations from local C. A. R. chapters attended as well as those who had come from other States. Among members of the board of management of the National Society present were Mrs. Frank S. Ray, Miss Aimee E. Powell, Mrs. Clayton E. Emig, Miss Grace M. Flood, Mrs. Blair Janin, Miss Anne Cummins, Mrs. Percy M. Bailey, Mrs. Horace Townner, Mrs. Jesse Rumsburg, Mrs. Lawrence Quirell, Mrs. Henry C. Wallace, Mrs. Fred T. Dubois, Mrs. Henry Keyes, Mrs. Robinson Downey, Miss Dorinda Rogers, Mrs. Charles S. Groves and Mrs. George M. Sternberg.

Irish Blood Rallies Dying Russian Jew

NEW YORK, April 23. — Irish blood in the veins of Louis Haft, a Russian Jewish patient in the Manhattan Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital has enabled him to put on a rally and physicians who are observing him have noted considerable improvement in his condition. Haft was an Hebrew until John Burns, for thirty years an employee of the hospital, gave a pint of his blood, free, to save Haft's life. Haft was then on the verge of despair because he could not raise the $50 fee demanded by professionals who make a business of selling their blood for transfusion. A previous operation had left Haft in a weakened condition.

MOVIE ACTRESSES AND THEIR HAIR

Did it ever occur to you that every movie actress you have seen has lovely hair, while the most popular count their curls as their chief beauty? In fact, many are leading ladies just because of their attractive looks. Inquire among them and you will find that they bring out all the natural beauty of their hair by careful shampooing, not with any soap or makeshift, but with a simple mixture by putting a teaspoonful of canthox (which they get from the druggist) in a cup of hot water and applying it instead of soap. This full cup of shampoo liquid is enough so it is easy to apply it to all the hair instead of just the top of the head. After its use, the hair dries rapidly with uniform color. Dandruff, excess oil and dirt are dissolved and entirely disappear. The hair is so fluffy that it looks much heavier than it is. Its luster and softness are delightful. Adv.

100 BREWERS PLAN MEDICINAL BEER

Revenue Commissioner Will Be Swamped With Applications for Licenses.

Approximately one hundred breweries and wineries will make application for licenses to manufacture beer and wine for medicinal use as soon as the new Commissioner of Internal Revenue issues regulations under which these beverages can be manufactured and sold.

Commissioner Blair is expected to be confirmed by the Senate and to be at his desk in Washington within a week. The issuance of regulations for the manufacture of wine and beer under the Palmer ruling is one of the most pressing problems before him, and will be taken up promptly. Several drafts of tentative regulations have been prepared for consideration by the Commissioner. These plans would leave much to the discretion of the prescribing physician in determining how much wine or beer was necessary to restore a patient's health. It is expected that a maximum of two bottles of beer a day and about four gallons of wine a month will be fixed.

BILL PROVIDES FOR MORE SCHOOLS

A bill to provide for the establishment of Federal schools in the mountainous or remote sections of inland States to provide the children of these sections with similar education to that given their brothers and sisters in the more populous regions, has been introduced in the House by Representative Tillman, of Arkansas. Twenty schools at which would be taught the common and high school branches, military science and tactics, and possibly domestic science, farming, road engineering, and scientific and industrial education, would be established. Tillman said there are a great many school districts where children cannot get more than a month's schooling from the meager district school fund.

Bay State Alumni Hold Spring Banquet Here

Gov. Miller's Ears Deaf To Orchestral Discard

ALBANY, N. Y., April 23.—A certain orchestra in Rochester will have to play in "discord." Gov. Miller decided today when he said he would grant extradition of Claude J. Hughes, of that city, to Maryland, where he is wanted in Baltimore on a charge of kidnapping his wife. Hughes' attorney told the governor that Hughes plays "an important instrument in an orchestra in Rochester and if you grant this extradition the orchestra will have to play in discord."

DENBY WATCHES FIRST LAUNCHING OF NAVY AIRBOAT

Big Naval Planes Are Changed Into Commercial Types.

The first of several naval aircraft to be converted into flying boats for commercial purposes was launched at the foot of Eighth street yesterday afternoon in the presence of Secretary of the Navy Denby, Capt. Moffett, head of naval aviation, and a group of interested Congressmen. The boats are of the naval coast patrol type, which proved their reliability during the war along the Atlantic seaboard and in service abroad. They have been made into six-seat open cock-pit and six-seat enclosed cabin for commercial passenger service. They are equipped with 400-horse power Liberty motors, have a wing spread of 73 feet and speed of 75 miles an hour. After the launching Secretary Denby took a long flight down the Potomac.

"In order to stimulate interest in commercial and civilian aviation so as to have trained men available in case of emergency, the navy has decided to dispose of several machines of this type at one-third actual cost," said Secretary Denby. "Hereafter the big handicap has been the cost of the necessary equipment, but we believe this plan will overcome that and at the same time put a number of reliable aircraft into civilian service."

Plan Indian Village Near Great Falls

Breuninger will deliver a lecture at Great Falls today at 1:30 o'clock and has extended an invitation to a number of Indian delegations now in Washington to attend. The general public also will be welcome, he said.

Borah to Launch Free Canal Tolls Fight This Week

Proposed free tolls for American vessels in the Panama Canal, it is becoming apparent, will precipitate a struggle in Congress as stirring and spectacular as the previous fight over the issue seven years ago. Differences on the subject are expected to begin developing in the Senate this week. Senator Borah, chairman of the Committee on Inter-Oceanic Canals, said yesterday he expected to bring the free tolls bill before the committee for consideration at an early date, probably this week. He is appraised there will be much opposition to free tolls legislation and that much of this will proceed from Republicans, despite the fact the Chicago platform declares for free tolls. A number of members of the Senate are on record against free tolls and this fact will enhance the difficulties of getting legislation to relieve American shipping of tolls. Senator Borah, however, is hopeful of getting a bill reported out of committee and of favorable action by the Senate.
